

LONDON GOES BACK TO WORK AFTER ITS BURST OF REVELRY

Scavengers Take Possession of Coronation Route Travelled By King

STATESMEN CONFERENCE

Series of informal Talks Begun By British Empire's Representatives

(By Kingsbury Smith)

LONDON, May 13—After the gayest, most brilliant burst of revelry ancient London ever saw, the city went back to work today and scavengers took possession of the coronation route which King George and Queen Elizabeth travelled yesterday in splendor. And at the same time, empire statesmen and assembled diplomats from all quarters of the globe got down to the business of instructing world affairs and taking up the grim game of European politics where it was dropped while Britain's new King and Queen were crowned.

The British Empire representatives, including Prime Minister MacKenzie King and other dominion premiers, began informal talks in preparation for the imperial conference opening tomorrow.

The coronation celebration got a death toll of three, as a result of activities surrounding the coronation. One of the deaths was caused in a dispute over sidewalk space. He was hit by a beer bottle. Two others dropped dead from sheer excitement. Hospital authorities estimated 7,500 persons were treated for various injuries.

Shad Supper Followed By Fine Entertainment

The Mothers' Association of Bristol public schools held its final meeting and annual shad supper last evening in the high school cafeteria at 6.30 o'clock. Members of the school board were invited guests. Covers were laid for 95. Mrs. John Myers acted as toastmistress and offered the blessing. She called upon Mrs. David Neill, president of the association, who extended a welcome, and expressed her thanks for co-operation during the past year.

Mrs. Myers then called upon Stanford K. Runyan, Arthur P. Brady, Mrs. Asa Fabian, Warren P. Snyder and Mrs. Harry Pope, Mrs. Pope was chairman of the supper committee, and Mrs. Herbert Hanson was in charge of the dining room. The menu included shad, boiled potatoes, asparagus, tomato and lettuce salad with dressing, rolls, butter, scallions, coffee, strawberries and whipped cream in puff shells. The tables were decorated with lilacs, and favors were made of gum-drops.

During the supper, Mrs. Myers, on behalf of the Mothers' Association, presented a gift to Miss Effie Watson, principal of the grades, Harrison building, who will retire at the close of the school year. Group singing, under direction of Mrs. Frank Parr, was enjoyed.

Members then adjourned to the auditorium where a short business meeting was held. An entertainment was given by the seventh grade of Bath street school. A play entitled "The Minuet" was staged and characters were: Elijah Thomas, a gentleman, William Della; Madame Thomas, his wife, Margaret Brownlee; Betty Thomas, his daughter, Frances Tomlinson; Robert Thomas, his son, Leslie Wallace; Francis Boudinot, a dancing teacher, Leonard Bobbs; Jerry Whitney, a young patriot, Ned Stetson; Alice Calhoun, Catherine Daniels; Richard Garren, Walter Baynes; Mary Lawrence, Mary Davis; Sergeant Barry, a messenger, Thomas Goodnow; two soldiers, Leonard Angus and Arthur Neill; a servant, Gertrude Brown. The play was directed by Miss E. Aileen Cottingham, teacher. The students made their own costumes and arranged steps for the minuet. A dance was given by Geraldine Kempton, sixth grade; violin solos, Elizabeth DeGregorio, "Flow Gently, Sweet Afton" and "Old Folks at Home"; seventh grade chorus, "Prayer Perfect," "Welcome Sweet Springtime," "Juanita," "The Bells of St. Mary's" and "Now the Day Is Over." The accompanist was Miss Clara Lerman.

Dancing was enjoyed later.

Tenderest Romance of Time is "Seventh Heaven"

The tenderest romance of our time lives again on the screen when "Seventh Heaven," the Twentieth Century-Fox production of Austin Strong's immortal love story, opens Thursday and Friday at the Grand Theatre, with Simone Simon and James Stewart in the starring roles.

Adapted from the stage play produced and directed by John Golden, "Seventh Heaven" re-creates for screen audiences that star-crossed pair of Montmartre, Diane and Chico, two lovers who lift your heart to the stars. As the little street waif, Diane, Simone Simon surpasses all hopes expressed for this sensational French find, touching the deepest places of your heart and emerging gloriously as the screen's newest and greatest star. Opposite her is James Stewart—tall, laughing, gray-eyed—as Chico of the valiant spirit and the shy, yearning love.

DISCUSS THE ASSESSMENT INEQUALITIES OF COUNTY

Special Committee Named By Real Estate Board To Interview Commissioners

MEET AT PERKASIE

PERKASIE, May 13—At the conclusion of a discussion regarding tax assessments in Bucks County, the Bucks County Real Estate Board named a special committee to see the county commissioners in regard to inequality of assessments.

This committee named at the monthly meeting in a restaurant here last evening includes: J. Carroll Malloy, Ralph Schlichter, and Otto Grupp, Jr. The meeting followed a splendid dinner, which was partaken of by 17 members.

Paul Townsend, Langhorne, was the presiding officer; with Jacob Horn, of this borough, in charge of the evening program.

Mr. Stotz, an Easton business man, spoke on the subject, "Pyrolox Stoves and Gas." He told how gas service can be given in the country the same as in a city. The company represented by Mr. Stotz is a unit of the Union Carbide and Carbon Association of New York City.

Directs Liquor Control Board

Harrisburg, May 13—Harry A. Statler, Johnstown, today assumed the position of acting Director of Operations for the State Liquor Control Board to succeed Ben G. Heisel, of Middletown, who resigned. Statler was former Assistant Director of Operations.

Killed By Own Car

Salem, N. J., May 13—Caught between the seat and the door, Harold G. Cline, 38, Penns Grove trucker, was strangled to death early today when his automobile overturned twice. It took rescuers more than an hour to extricate the body of Cline, who is survived by a widow and three children.

Dies of Fall

Wildwood, N. J., May 13—Norvil Wilkie, 53, of Philadelphia, died today in a hospital here of head injuries which police believe he received in an accidental fall. He was found last Monday wandering with a bloody face and almost nude, along Park Boulevard.

Steel Strike On

Pittsburgh, May 13—A shouting, cheering throng of 20,000 men and women surrounded the strike-closed plants of the Jones & Laughlin Steel Corporation today, effectively preventing resumption of operations.

The strike was called by John L. Lewis steel workers' organizing committee when the large independent steel corporation failed to sign a union contract.

Held For Passing Fake Money

Philadelphia, May 13—Seized in Easton by secret service agents, Gertrude Harmon, 22, an attractive blonde, today was held in $2500 bail for U. S. Commissioner William S. Wacker, on charge of passing a bogus $10 note in a clothing store. She gave her address as Lancaster.

Head of the secret service police said he believed the woman was the instrument of a counterfeiting ring whose headquarters probably are in New York.

YARDLEY

A covered dish supper was held on Tuesday evening at the Yardley Methodist Church Sunday School room, for the benefit of the fund to send delegates to the Blairstown Epworth League Institute this summer.

PATRIOTIC FERVOR HAILED THE RATIFICATION OF U. S. CONSTITUTION

Brilliant Pageant and Parade Staged To Express Happiness Over the "Dawn of a New Day"

(Note: This year the nation commemorates the sesqui-centennial anniversary of the birth of the Constitution of the United States. In a series of four articles, of which this is the fourth, International News Service brings to the readers of The Courier a review of the stirring times in which the historic and model document was drawn up and adopted.)

By Joseph M. Thompson

(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

PHILADELPHIA, May 13—(INS)—The Liberty Bell will ring again in Independence Hall and men wearing costumes of the colonial period will re-enact scenes from the Constitutional Convention when this city launches the country-wide observance of the 150th anniversary of the adoption of the constitution tomorrow.

It was on the 14th of May, 1787, that delegates to the Constitutional Convention first arrived in Philadelphia. From May 14 until September 17, anniversary of the adoption of the constitution, this city—as the birth place of the Constitution—will take the spotlight in the observance of the anniversary just as it did a century and a half ago.

The official opening exercises will begin when a special relay of Boy Scouts race to the old State House from Valley Forge with a historic gavel. Mayor Wilson will use the gavel to sound the bell. Unveiling of the original draft of the constitution will follow.

In 1787 when the news arrived that the great pact had been formally ratified by 19 states, enough to make it effective as a ruling instrument, the leading citizens voted to throw a grand pageant and party to express their happiness over the "dawn of a new day."

As described by one historian, Dr. Ellis P. Oberholzer, the festivities set a new high mark for patriotic enthusiasm.

The bells of Christ Episcopal Church pealed forth a joyous paean while "The Grand Federal Procession" in 88 divisions moved down the street amid the wild cheers of the watching throng.

The most impressive feature of the pageant were two elaborate structures—"The Grand Federal Edifice," and "The Federal Ship Union." The former was a dome supported by 13 corinthian columns. The top was surmounted by a cupola on which was a figure of Plenty bearing cornucopias. Around the pedestal of the edifice were the words, "In Union the Fabric Stands Firm." It was drawn by 10 white horses.

The Federal Ship Union was built

START THREE SUITS IN COMMON PLEAS COURT

One of Actions is Outgrowth Of An Automobile Accident

TWO FOR DIVORCES

DOYLESTOWN, May 13—Three suits, one of which grows out of an automobile accident and two from libels in divorce, have begun in the Court of Common Pleas here.

Claiming damages amounting to $2565, on the part of a father and son, Albert Cronce by his father, Arthur Cronce, has filed an action in trespass naming Sigmund Kullman, Frenchtown, N. J., R. D. 1.

The minor defendant, Albert, and his father live in Sundale, Tinicum township.

According to the statement of claim filed in the Prothonotary's office, the minor plaintiff was riding in a car on the River Road, near Erwinna, Bucks county, September 16, 1935, when he became involved in an accident.

The minor plaintiff avers that he suffered a crushed elbow and fractured arm and various other injuries. He was a patient in the Easton Hospital from September 16 to November 11.

He also avers that his hospital bill amounted to $320.75, his physician's $386, and that damages and loss of earnings amounted to $1065.

In his own right, the minor plaintiff claims $1500, and his father claims the sum of $1065.

Charging her husband, Raymond Hudson, with desertion, Mary Hudson has filed an action in divorce in the Court of Common Pleas.

According to the libel in divorce, they were married October 13, 1931, by the Rev. Samuel E. Moyer at Perkaskie. The libellant is a resident of East Rockhill township, and the address of her husband is 1339 West Silver street, Philadelphia.

The desertion is alleged to have taken place March 7, 1932.

In a libel in divorce Mary Clinton, of Jamison, is charged with cruel and barbarous treatment and making life intolerable, by her husband, John T. Clinton, also of Jamison.

They were married July 3, 1912, in New York City. The libel lists a number of indignities committed at various intervals and places by the respondent.

from a barge which had been captured by John Paul Jones in the engagement with the "Serapis." It was 33 feet long, mounted 20 guns, and carried a crew of 25 men. Also exhibited on the platforms were the looms and machines of the Manufacturing Society at which men and women were seen at work.

Among the events of the Revolutionary War portrayed in the pageant was the French Alliance as shown by a white silk banner bearing three fleur de lys and 13 stars over the words "Sixth of February, 1778." A blue flag bore the legend "Washington, the Friend of His Country."

There were judges in their scarlet robes riding in a lofty ornamented car in the form of a large eagle drawn by six horses. The car bore a copy of the constitution framed and fixed on a staff crowned by a liberty cap. Ten gentlemen representing the states which had ratified the constitution, each carrying a flag, marched arm in arm to symbolize the Union.

In the Delaware River 10 vessels flying at their mast heads broad white flags each bearing the name of a state were dressed and arranged through the whole length of the harbor.

As the big parade moved majestically along watchmen called the hour, "Ten o'clock and a glorious star-light morning," an allusion to the 10 ratified states and the stars in the flag.

Roosevelt Returns Tomorrow

By George R. Holmes

Washington, May 13—President Roosevelt returns to Washington tomorrow to face the most serious situation from a Congressional standpoint, that has confronted him since he has been in the White House.

The spirit of revolt is rampant on Capitol Hill, the Democrats split and quarreling among themselves, the Republicans becoming more aggressive and doing their feeble best to promote the schism that has torn the Democratic solidarity to shreds. It is a situation that will require all of Mr. Roosevelt's power of conciliation and leadership if his program is not to be wrecked on the shoals of Democratic dissension. Administration leaders in both houses are anxious and looking to Mr. Roosevelt to iron out the difficulties, if, indeed, they can be ironed out.

Plan To Revise Bill

Harrisburg, May 13—A small group of Democrats today moved to revise the Melchiorre bill re-organizing parliament betting on horse racing in Pennsylvania.

The movement was headed by Secretary of Revenue John B. Kelly, Philadelphia Democratic chairman, who has already strained relations over the bill with Secretary of the Commonwealth David L. Lawrence, who is also Democratic state chairman.

The horse racing bill, backed by Kelly and opposed by Lawrence, was killed by the House Wednesday.

Blames Devil and Whiskey

Harrisburg, May 13—"The voice of the devil and whiskey were responsible," 35-year-old Samuel D. Deltrich of Wiconisco, muttered over and over in Dauphin County Court today.

He was arrested by state police for allegedly setting about 15 forest fires in this section, which swept over more than 1500 acres of timberland. Police said Deltrich's procedure was to set the fires, notify the fire wardens, and then assist fire fighters in battling the flames.

Appointed A Deputy

Harrisburg, May 13—John P. Wanner, of Reading, today had been appointed Deputy Attorney General to fill the position made vacant by P. Clair Ross. Wanner, 50, is solicitor for the Berks County Controller.

The luncheon will be served by the church choir.

WOMEN VOTERS' LEAGUE PLANS TOUR IN COUNTY

Will Hold Fourth of Series of House and Garden Days

ON TUESDAY, MAY 18TH

Many people are looking forward to the afternoon of Tuesday, May 18, at which time, from two to six p. m. (d. s. t.), Bucks County League of Women Voters will be hostess to visitors from adjoining counties in the fourth of the series of House and Garden Days being conducted for the benefit of Pennsylvania League of Women Voters. It is reported that Bucks County Day tickets were easy sellers in other counties, which is indeed little wonder for the places selected to be visited are of unusual merit.

"Font Hill," at Doylestown, opposite the fair grounds, is alone worthy of a whole afternoon. One would need to travel far before one could find such a castle-like structure to say nothing of the priceless tile typical of many sections of the globe. As aides to the sight-seers at Font Hill, Mrs. Thomas Ross, Mrs. Herbert Craig, Mrs. James Shellenberger, Mrs. Arthur Eastburn and Miss Laura Anderson, all of Doylestown, will act, while Mrs. Irvin James will be hostess at the Little Stone House in the Woodland where the nature student will revel in bird notes and trees and flowers.

Near Aquetong, on York Road, a beautiful old Colonial mansion is opened. The house was built in 1748 and has been kept as nearly as possible to the early period and is furnished with everything befitting that time of long ago. The garden, too, is beautiful in its simplicity, with many old-fashioned flowers. This lovely property is the home of Mrs. Sarah Nichols, who will be assisted in receiving by Mrs. Elizabeth Cox, Mrs. Margaret Rhoads, Mrs. Samuel Paxson and Miss Miriam Broadhurst, all residents of Buckingham-Solebury section.

The third place to be visited is Phillips' Mill Corner, situated not far north of New Hope. Mrs. John Follinsbee, who is chairman in Bucks County for these Garden Days, being closely in touch with the artists' group—her husband being a well-known painter of New Hope—was able to secure for the League the privilege of the use of Phillips Mill for the afternoon, where tea and cookies will be served to all guests from three to six o'clock.

The committee in charge, in addition to Mrs. Follinsbee, is Mrs. Marie Rals-ton, Miss Juliet Smith, New Hope; Mrs. Charles Meredith, Mrs. Bringhurst, Mrs. Henry Kinsey, Mrs. Milton Weiss, Quakertown; Mrs. Robert Tomlinson, Mrs. Howard Kester, Mrs. Albert Mammel, Mrs. J. W. Barbour, and Mrs. Harry Horne, Newtown.

All during May there is an exhibition at the Mill an art display of wide range, including oil, water colors, tempera, prints, sculpture. The League was fortunate in timing its tour to include this unusual exhibit of modern painters. Some 25 artists in a radius of 15 miles from New Hope are taking part. Fay Swengel (Mrs. Ben Badura), and Henry H. Baker were leaders in the assembling of this "non-jury" show.

While many Bucks County people may have visited "Font Hill" and the "Mill" previously, it is quite likely that they will enjoy going again on May 18th under the different circumstances arranged by the Tour, enjoying the sociability of meeting people from other counties, even other states, and knowing that the proceeds of the occasion will aid the work of further non-partisan political education in Pennsylvania.

TO NAME OFFICERS

Catholic Daughters of America will meet tonight to discuss business of vital importance, states Mrs. Andrew Moore, worthy grand regent of Court Bristol, 1937. Officers will be elected for the ensuing year, and all members are urged to attend. The meeting will start at 8.15 sharp.

CARDS TONIGHT

EDGELY, May 13—Don't forget the card party given tonight by the Ladies Auxiliary of St. Paul's Chapel. Many prizes have been obtained for this occasion and the public is invited.

ANTIQUES BRING HIGH PRICES AT ALL-DAY SALE HERE

Bidding Brisk, and Private Collectors and Dealers From Seven States Attend

SEVERAL CHOICE PIECES

Curley Maple Martha Washington Sewing Stand Brings $450

High prices were commanded when rare antiques from the estates of Charles T. Louisa and Mary H. Iredell, were sold at the Iredell residence, 1119 Radcliffe street, yesterday. Bidding was brisk, and private collectors and dealers came from seven states in an endeavor to secure the valuable pieces. New York, New Jersey, Maryland, Delaware, Rhode Island, Connecticut and Pennsylvania were represented.

One of the highest prices commanded was for the Sheraton Curley Maple Martha Washington Sewing Stand, which sold for $450. This rare and valuable piece had a hinged top with two small compartments, tambour carved all around, dainty legs, and was a beautiful piece of curley maple in the rough.

The price of $300 purchased an early American Queen Anne arm chair, with a fiddle back, scroll carved ears, bow shaped crest rail, voluted carved arm. Five J. McMullin Silver Tablespoons, which were buried in the ground during the Revolutionary War by Rebecca Atkinson Newbold at the time of the Battle of Trenton, commanded $250 and $300 apiece.

The Hepplewhite half-moon table, mahogany, a piece 36 inches in diameter, having five square tapered legs, sold for $120, and a Hepplewhite half-moon table in mahogany, with four tapered inlaid legs sold for $65.

The price of $120 was secured for a slope-fall writing desk in cherry. This piece had four graduated drawers, and the original brasses.

Seven "Poor Richard Almanacs" sold for the sum of $110. Dealers were most numerous in the large crowd gathered throughout the day, the sale starting at 10 a. m., and ending at about five p. m.

Three old tables sold for $210; while the matched pair of Hepplewhite knife boxes, with serpentine front, silver escutcheons, inlaid in the interior, brought $60 apiece.

Bidding was brisk throughout the day, and admiring glances were cast upon the fine old pieces. Arrow back arm chairs, and side chairs, mahogany drop-leaf dining table, mahogany console table, a Jefferson painting representing Rip Van Winkle, a Victorian arm chair; set of six Hitchcock decorated chairs, Sheraton sideboard, etc., were sold under the hammer. Rare vases; china including Lowestoft cups and saucers, Alabaster compote, Canton bowl; busts, etc., were sold, as were also paintings, books, and many other items.

Ira S. Reed, Sellersville, was the auctioneer.

Sunday School Class Has Mother-Daughter Banquet

The Sunday School class of Bristol Methodist Church, taught by Mrs. William Mohr, held a mother-daughter banquet Tuesday evening in the Epworth League room of the church. The tables were decorated with cut flowers and candles. Favors were yellow baskets. At each mother's place there was a carnation.

Miss Marion Walters, president of the class, welcomed the mothers and Mrs. Mohr was also called upon for a few words. The banquet was served by the choir, menu including: pineapple juice, turkey, dressing, mashed potatoes, gravy, peas, rolls, coffee, ice-cream, cake, mints. An entertainment was given, first an amateur radio broadcast, then a sketch, "Little Red School House at Tompkins' Corner." This was followed by a fashion show. Members of the class participated.

Those enjoying the affair: Mrs. John Simons, Mrs. Hattie Warrick, Mrs. Nancy Follin, Mrs. Norman Rapp, Mrs. William Doan, Mrs. William Milnor, Jr., Mrs. Harold Hunter, Mrs. Charles Milnor, Mrs. Howard Case, Mrs. William Mohr, Mrs. Walter Appleton, Mrs. Smith, Mrs. Charles Rathke, Mrs. Frank Mershon, Mrs. Russell Booz, Mrs. Jack Lynn.

JAPAN'S LANDSLIDE

No government in Japan's history has suffered a defeat comparable with that which the recent Japanese elections gave to the Cabinet headed by General Hayashi. Some 400 of the 466 seats in a new House of Representatives will be filled by opponents of the military regime which, at the costs of increased home taxation and small returns in economic advantages, conquered Manchukuo and attempted to subjugate much of China proper.

Party divisions in Japan are complex. The liberal opponents of the Hayashi Government's military rule are divided into several parties. Powers superior to those of the elected legislature remain in the hands of the Emperor, his Privy Council and the House of Peers. Thorough change, such as would follow a similar vote in this country, may not ensue.

Serious heed must be paid in Japan, however; and another people's judgment has been significantly passed on a military dictatorship. As usual, when the great peoples of the world are allowed to choose between popular and militaristic governments, with democratic methods prevailing, the costs and suffering of wars are shunned. Militarism, the chief threat of world peace, imposes crushing loads on the peoples forced to maintain it.

RISE IN TWINS

A statistic is a curious thing, and one of the most curious statistics in recent years is in the report of the Association of Baby-Carriage Dealers, recently made public. It discloses an unaccountable increase in the demand for twin-perambulators. The association tactfully evades discussion of causes (leaving it, perhaps, to the newspapers to make the most, or the least, of it) but comes out with the fact: there are more twins, or at least more twin baby-carriages, being sold today than ever before.

A natural inference might be that parents have suddenly become envious of the Dionne family and are going in for twins and other multiples of progeny in a big way. And, since it is easier to set up the twin-baby habit than that of triplets, quadruplets and so on, the trade in twin-baby carriages is first to feel the effect of the new biological burgeoning. Or it may be due to the economic strain and stress which during the last three years has occasioned the doubling up of families—sometimes three and four-fold—in houses and apartments which in ordinary times accommodated only one. In these crowded conditions the processes of life and death go on relentlessly. There are no more children to the family, but there are to the dwelling. What more natural then, than to make one baby-carriage, or two or three, answer the needs of the many families under one roof?

However, this is a matter which does not necessarily demand explanation. If there are more twins than there used to be, there's not to reason why, but merely to accept as a fact. Either as a fact, or the product of a clever press agent of the Association of Baby-Carriage Dealers.

Maybe the lady who sort of felt she had had a romance with Clark Gable ought to meet the fellow who was under the impression he had married Mac West.

Wally is said to have dropped 10 pounds or so during the interval of waiting, or about $49 in our money.

An admission service was conducted in the church auditorium, then the supper in the parish house was followed by a social program. The Rev. Walter C. Pugh, Yardley, officiated at the church service; and speakers of the day included: Mrs. Spies, president of the Girls' Friendly of the Philadelphia Diocese, who told of the work of these organizations in different sections; Mrs. Robert Belleville, Yardley, one of the vice presidents of the Friendlies of the Diocese and head of the Bucks County Group. The program for the social period was in charge of the program advisor from Philadelphia. The chairman of the three groups of Girls Friendly Societies of this parish is Mrs. Robert Brien, Sr.; with Mrs. Thomas K. Schatt being president.

TULLYTOWN

"Rich Girl-Poor Girl" by FAITH BALDWIN

SYNOPSIS

Young Dr. Jonathan Kimber preferred to succeed on his own merits rather than take over the well established practice of his late father. So he goes to the little town of Riverport to take the place of old Dr. Alan Ballard, retired and now living in California. Evelina, his predecessor's meticulous old housekeeper, has everything ready for Jonathan, and Rose Ward, Dr. Ballard's pretty niece, to whom the young physician was greatly attracted when they met a few months previous, invites him to dinner the first night. Jonathan spends a pleasant evening with Rose and her mother but leaves early to attend a patient. Rose accompanies him.

CHAPTER VIII

They had reached the house and Rose said, "I hope you have your key. Evelina hates coming to the front door. Uncle Alan always left it open for patients."

"I've no rooted objection to the back door," he told her.

They invaded Evelina's kitchen and Jonathan left Rose there and went on into the office, where he tried the swivel chair at the consulting room desk, and frowned at his diplomas which he had hung on the wall that afternoon. His new State License hung there too, inviting all comers.

He looked about the room and through the open door at the one beyond mentally rearranging them. Presently there was a knock and Peter's lad walked in. He'd come, he announced, through the side door.

Fred's case was quickly attended to and dismissing him Jonathan decided that his father's curiosity had probably sent him there, and not his ailment. He went on into the kitchen and beamed at Evelina and Rose, deep in a culinary discussion. "First patient agree, four, doctored, admonished and sent on his way rejoicing."

"Did he pay you?" inquired Evelina.

Rose giggled. She said, "Now, Evelina—"

"Well, not exactly. I paid him," replied Jonathan cheerfully.

"For Heaven's sake," said Evelina glumly, "whatever for?"

"Oh, for luck. A nice new quarter. He was speechless."

Presently they went back to the Ward house. Jonathan striding along beside Rose, his hands in his pockets said, "I've been wondering about an office nurse. . ."

"Some of the men have them, but not many. Uncle Alan didn't. He said it would give him the fidgets."

Jonathan said gravely, "Until my practice is well started I'll have to budget things carefully. I've ordered some office equipment. . . Then there's the house and the car."

"And Evelina," she reminded him.

"Of course. And we must eat, I suppose. No, I think I'll get along without a nurse for a while. That is, if I can. In the city of course one is practically essential."

"Not here," said Rose consolingly. "Tomorrow," said Jonathan drawing a deep breath, "the plate goes up and the supplementary office information. After that, I'll sit myself down and wait."

"I might manage a cold," suggested Rose thoughtfully.

"Please don't," he advised her in alarm, "that's carrying friendship too far."

"Uncle Alan said we were to look out after you," she reminded him. They were silent for a moment and then she said, as they reached the steps of her house, "I—I hope you won't be homesick here."

He shook his head, standing on the step below her.

"No—I've been away from home a good deal, prep school, college, medical school, New York, Vienna. . . I don't believe you get homesick for a place, in such circumstances. For people, of course. But I've no one now. . . I didn't say that," he added in alarm, as she made a little sound indicative of sympathy, "in order to place myself in the light of the orphan child out on the street corner selling matches. . ."

He followed her up the steps and to the veranda. Mrs. Ward had disappeared and Rose went to the door to call her. "We're here, Mother," she said, and then came back and sat beside him on the canvas swing. She said, "You'll make friends here."

"I hope so. You're my first—you and your mother. . .," he told her, "after Doctor Ballard."

He spoke gravely, and Rose felt her throat thicken, for no adequate reason. She asked herself severely, "What's the matter with you, getting all emotional over a tall dark stranger with a nice deep voice and a sort of absurd little boy lost look in brown eyes—not that I lost look in his eyes at the moment. Aloud she said lightly,

"We'll prove it. I'll go around presenting bunches of poison ivy to all my acquaintances, Doctor Kimber."

He asked, diffidently,

"I suppose it's too soon to call me anything else?"

"That depends," said Rose cautiously "on what you want to be called."

"I answer to almost anything," he informed her, including an hysterical scream. But—have you any objection to Jonathan?"

"Too long," she replied, after due reflection. "Never do in an emergency."

He sighed. "Most of my men friends call me Kim," he suggested. "Too Klinging."

"My father called me Jon," he offered.

"Without the H?"

"Without the H," he agreed.

"That's rather nice," she decided. "Then, if it isn't too soon—"

"We're an informal community, Jon," she said carelessly.

He had not believed that the shortening of his name could sound as pleasant. He said, "Then Jon it is—Miss Ward."

"That," she said firmly, "is idiotic. Anything but Rosie, please. When I hear myself addressed as Rosie, I have convulsions."

"I'm good at convulsions," he began and then turned as someone came bounding up the steps. A loud, cheerful laugh preceded him.

"Anyone home? I crave food."

"It's Bill Lynd," said Rose. She called back, "Here, on the veranda, and do moderate your tone, it's after nine o'clock."

Lynd opened the screen door which shut them off from the steps and came in. . . "Company," he exclaimed, in mock horror. "Pardon my armed invasion."

"You remember Doctor Kimber?" Rose told him, laughing.

"Naturally. Heard you were coming today. Read it, as far as that goes, in the local Know-All this morning."

"Of course," said Rose. "I meant to leave the paper at the house this morning. . . Your arrival was announced among the social items. You'll probably be asked for an interview. How you like our little town and in what way you expect to revolutionize medicine here."

"Heaven forbid!" said Jonathan, genuinely alarmed.

Attracted by their laughter Mrs. Ward came out on the porch and the men rose. Lynd slipped an arm around her slender shoulders. "Hello, Mother Ward," he said affectionately, "how's the cookie jar holding out?"

She said, "No better than usual, with you here every night in the week, Bill Lynd. I've made some coffee."

Walking home, a little after eleven, Jonathan reflected, I wonder if she's engaged to Lynd. . . ? I mean, some sort of an understanding? It wouldn't be credible if a girl as pretty as Rose hadn't an understanding with somebody. Nice fellow, he reflected further, without much enthusiasm, and found to his dismay that the mental picture of Rose and Bill Lynd, whether engaged or only employed in understanding one another, was exceedingly distasteful.

At the end of six weeks Jonathan Kimber, while still an object of great curiosity in Riverport, had more or less established a routine. He had an average of six patients a day, in the office or out, of which three would be paying patients, at least. These were patients of Doctor Ballard's, members of large, friendly families all of them outside the town itself. Countless people dropped in however, with an ache or pain of which to complain, and for the most part entirely fictitious. Jonathan told them so, and sent them on their way. They did not return. He told Rose ruefully, "Perhaps I haven't the hang of doctoring yet."

The novelty seekers were all women. Rose laughed at him, and shook her bright head. She said, "They'll spread a rumor that you don't know very much, after all."

"I know too much," he said gloomily, "so I expect I've missed a bet. A few sugar pills and a mild tonic and they would have come running back to me. But somehow I can't stomach that."

"Pills or tonic?" She laughed again. "Wait a while. . . once the newness wears off, once people get to know how good you really are, you won't lack for patients," she assured him.

"How do you know I'm good?" "Uncle Alan believed it," she said. "That's enough for me."

He sent a report to Doctor Ballard who wrote him consolingly that he was getting along "as well as can be expected. One fractured leg, an emergency appendix—three cases of measles and the usual run of the mill. Not so bad, my boy, not so bad. You won't get fat on it but a lean horse for a long race any time. As for me, I'm all right. Climate's all they say it is and that kid of Nan's ought to make a fine surgeon. Good hands—and likes to cut up."

NOW IS THE TIME TO GIVE THOUGHT TO SUMMER CANNING

By Miss Edna Stephany

(Home Economics Representative)

Many women are now thinking seriously about having their gardens provide plenty of vegetables and fruits, not only for the summer months but also enough to can for use next winter.

Nothing is quite so satisfying to the woman fair exhibitor as a premium on her canned goods. With the keen competition that now exists, most women are anxious to know what goes into the judging of canned goods.

Most canned fruits and vegetables are judged for QUALITY, GENERAL APPEARANCE, and PACKAGE.

A clear liquid with no sediment, strings, or cloudiness is considered under quality. Besides this the food canned should be free from spots and moldiness.

For the best general appearance, fruits and vegetables should be uniform in size and shape and have a natural color. A neat arrangement in the jar improves the general appearance but FANCY DESIGNS IN ARRANGEMENT ARE A WASTE OF TIME AND ENERGY AND DO NOT INCREASE THE SCORE OF THE CANNED FOOD.

Under package, the appearance and cleanliness of the jar itself, the lid, and the rubber are important. Besides this, the shape and neatness of the label is considered. Many women spend hours making fancy labels for their jars which only detract from their exhibit.

As would be expected the quality of any canned goods is most important and ranks highest in judging. General appearance ranks second and package third. With 100 being the perfect score it often is divided this way, 50 for quality, 40 for general appearance, and 10 for package.

Now is the time to plan for premium jars. Consider these points when canning so that this may be a banner blue ribbon year for canned fruits and vegetables.

INTERESTING VEGETABLE DISHES

Lima Beans and Tomato Sauce

Heat one can of lima beans, or boil an equivalent measure of fresh beans. Cover three-fourth with boiling water until tender. Drain until dry and smooth. Mix two tablespoons of flour in two tablespoons heated butter. Then add one-half cupful of catsup and heat thoroughly, stirring constantly. Mash beans or put through a ricer, and garnish with catsup sauce poured over top.

Buttered Peas and Celery

Use one can of peas, or similar amount fresh peas. Add two cups diced celery, cut in three inch pieces, three tablespoons butter, one-half teaspoon salt, few grains of pepper. Place in covered buttered baking dish, cover closely and bake at 350 degrees F. for one and one-half hours. This could bake with a roast.

SAXON SONGFEST

SALEM, O.—(INS)—More than 10,000 Saxons from as far East as New York and as far west as St. Louis are expected to come here on Labor Day for the seventh biennial Saxon Songfest.

Local Saxon officials said more than 1,000 singers will participate in the singing competition. Because of limited hotel facilities, citizens will be asked to open their doors to visitors.

FEET CARRY 1,357 TONS

ELIZABETH, N. J.—(INS)—The average pair of human feet carry 1,357 tons every day. Meeting here for its annual convention, the Chiropo-dist's Society of New Jersey made this discovery by taking an average of 18,098 steps a day, or seven and seven-eighths miles of walking for a person weighing 150 pounds.

County Track Meet To Attract Big Crowd

Girls will enter six track and field events during the afternoon.

Boys' field events will get under way at 9:45 o'clock in the morning and will continue until 4 o'clock. Although not all the entry blanks have been returned as yet, representations from more than 30 schools will compete for points and medals in the boys' division.

Competition will be much keener this year because of changes in the way in which the carnival will be conducted, according to Lewis N. Snyder, supervising principal of Sellersville-Perkasie High School. Individuals will be permitted to enter only three boys' events and only two in the girls' division. This will mean more equal chances for each school.

Miss Anne Schaub, of West Chester Teachers College, the chief field judge of girls' events, will be assisted by the following: Anne Romig, Dina D'Orazio, Berdula Rubright, Catherine Davis, Eleanor Brandt, Geraldine Yarger, Dorothy Flavelle and Mildred Ressel. C. J. Schaeffer, Ursinus College, and twelve assistants, will judge the boys' activities.

Schools expected to compete are as follows: Class A, Doylestown, Bensalem, Bristol borough, Langhorne-Middletown, Morrisville, Quakertown and Sellersville-Perkasie; Class B, Buckingham, Falls township, Hilltown township, New Hope, Newtown, Richboro, Upper Southampton and Yardley; Class C, Bensalem township, Bristol borough, Langhorne-Middletown, Morrisville, Quakertown, Sellersville-Perkasie, and Class D, Buckingham township, Hulmeville-Middletown, Lower Makefield township, New Hope, Newtown, Northampton, South Langhorne, Upper Southampton and Yardley.

Patriotic Fervor Hailed Ratification of Constitution

The clergy—Catholic, Protestant and Jewish—marched arm in arm along with members of the bar, the College of Physicians and university students. Foreign consuls and public officials also had their place in the line of march.

The pageant ended with an oration by James Wilson, a salute fired by the militia, and a sumptuous dinner. At the banquet there were toasts with American porter, beer and cider announced by the blast of a trumpet and answered by a round of artillery.

The first toast was "to the people of the United States"; the second "to General Washington"; and the third "to the King of France." Then the celebrators filled up their glasses again to wind up the party with a final toast "to the Whole Family of Mankind." Even the hated Tories who had tried to scuttle the Revolution were included in this one. It was the dawn of a national consciousness. In their vision of a united country that preserved to them their hard won liberty the patriots were willing to forgive and forget old grievances.

GARDEN HINTS

By James H. Burdett
Director of National Garden Bureau

Common Errors in Using Plant Food

When grass is burned by an application of plant food, it's usually due to the fact that the food has become wet while in contact with the green leaves.

Dry plant food on dry leaves will not burn, but if the material becomes damp or wet, then elements become active which will "burn" green foliage. The injury will not be serious if only part of the foliage is affected, but may be so if the entire leaf area is affected; but is likely to be less serious on lawns than on other plants.

Directions for the use of modern plant foods instruct users to apply it to the lawn only when the grass is dry. Then it should be washed into the soil immediately. It is not good practice to leave this job to a rain. If left overnight, the morning dew may wet leaves and plant food sufficiently to cause trouble; or even if a shower comes immediately it may not have force enough to wash the grass leaves clean. Soaking with the hose immediately after the plant food is applied performs a double duty, it washes the leaves clean, and it carries the plant food down to the plant roots in soluble form, which is at once available to the plants.

Plant Food in the Garden

Modern plant foods are not spaded into the soil like the old-fashioned manures. They are quickly soluble and should not be applied until after the soil has been prepared, and then they are placed close to the surface and as near as possible to the plants that are to consume them.

In the vegetable garden plant food may be broadcast at the rate of four pounds to 100 square feet just before the seed is sown. Rake the plant food lightly into the soil, so that it is incorporated with the top two or three inches of soil. If you have a spreader, it is permissible to wait until the seed has been sown and then run the spreader down between the rows; or with care the plant food can be broadcast between the rows at this time.

Crops that require a long period to mature, such as beets, carrots, melons, parsnips and others, should have another application of plant food five or six weeks after the first; this should be spread on both sides of the row keeping about three inches away from the plants. Apply it just before cultivating, which will mix the plant food with the top soil. The second and subsequent applications may be at the rate of two pounds per 100 square feet.

Companion and Succession Crops

In the small vegetable garden an important part of planning concerns companion and succession crops. That means crops which can be sown together in the same row, or close side by side without crowding each other; and crops which can occupy the same ground during the season, one following the other.

The vegetable gardener with limited space, like a factory manager, wants to get capacity production. He knows that radishes will take only a few weeks to germinate and mature, and were nothing else growing in that row, it might be vacant and unproductive for some time. But by mixing radishes and parsley seed he gets a second crop of parsley after the radishes are harvested; at the same time marking the row with a quick germinating crop, so that cultivation can be safely carried on long before the parsley has appeared.

This partnership, radishes with parsley, is probably the most popular of companion crops, with radishes and carrots and radishes and parsnips close behind. But one warning should be given; that in all cases the seed must be sown thinly, especially the radish seed.

In the case of succession plantings the gardener waits until a quick maturing vegetable has been harvested, removes it and sows seed of another in the same row. Here are a few suggestions:

Radishes followed by bush beans.

Early peas followed by turnips, carrots or beets.

Early beans followed by carrots or beets.

Spinach followed by sweet corn, tomatoes or beans.

Young onions from sets followed by eggplant or peppers.

In making succession plantings, a crop should not be followed by one exactly like it. Root crops should not follow root crops, or leaf crops follow leaf crops.

Perennial Flowers From Seed

Perennials are most easily grown from seed when sown in the spring in a seed bed, and transplanted when two or three inches tall to a nursery row, where they are allowed to grow until fall, when they may be transplanted to the border.

This applies to those perennials which will germinate within 30 days from the time of sowing. Slower germinating subjects are best sown in flats or shallow pots, where they can be allowed to remain undisturbed for as long as a year if necessary. Many of the slow subjects germinate best after being outdoors all winter.

The quicker germinating subjects are much easier to start in the spring, with cool, moist weather, than in the summer, when it is likely to be dry and hot. When they are transplanted, which may be anytime after they have made their second pair of leaves, it is best to set them in fairly good soil, in a location which is shaded from the noonday sun, and where they can be watered.

Perennials which prefer to be sown in the fall, in flats or shallow pots, and left outdoors all winter, include phlox, dictamnus, primulas, troilus. In general if a slow germinating subject has not shown sprouts by fall, it should be wintered outdoors, in a frame or under the eaves of the house covered with leaves. The soil in the box or pot should not be allowed to become too dry, but should not be watered except when it definitely needs it.

"HALLOWED SOIL"

WALLA WALLA, Wash. — (INS) — A pinch of soil from Wallatpu was sent eastward recently to commemorate the 150th anniversary of the Pennsylvania Federation of Women's Clubs. The club had requested soil from Washington's "most hallowed spot" and Wallatpu was selected because the first white home west of the Rocky Mountains was established there by the martyred Marcus and Narcissa Whitman.

EARTHQUAKE EXODUS

LIMA, Peru — (INS) — Seven earth shocks in less than a week have decided the population of Cajabamba, a small village, to sift en bloc to "healthier" quarters. The exodus started recently when 200 of the village's 3,000 inhabitants set out in carts to new quarters 50 miles away.

Putting the DOLLAR on the PAYROLL!

EVERY DOLLAR YOU EARN IS WORKING OR SHIRKING!

You can part with your dollar hurriedly, without thought of real value received. That kind is a shirker. Keep it off your payroll.

Or you can spend the dollar wisely, shrewdly, making sure each penny returns a full penny's value. That kind of dollar is an honest laborer—working in your best interest.

How can you put the honest dollar on your payroll? First, budget. Second, shop with both eyes open. Third, read the advertisements.

Read the advertisements because they tell you what's new, what's useful, what's economical. Read them because they represent the best values of the best stores and manufacturers. Read them because they save you money by saving you time and trouble. Read them because it pays!

Coronation of This And of Other Days

Richard I. had his undershirt ripped open by an enthusiastic knight whose duty it was to open the royal costume at the neck for the anointing ceremony.

The coronation of Edward II. was so long drawn out that many persons fainted of hunger. This coronation was marked by a scene between the Archbishop of Canterbury and Lord Gaveston, who for long had been enemies. As the archbishop was about to crown the monarch, the noble dashed forward, snatched the crown from the hands of the cleric, and himself crowned the king.

Rev. James de Wolf Perry, junior son of the head of the Protestant Episcopal Church of the U. S. A., is the first American clergyman ever to take part in a coronation service. He acted as chaplain to the Archbishop of York. The appointment was explained to be a "gesture of friendship between the English and American Anglican churches."

Nearly 100,000 yards of material was used for the hangings, draperies and canopies in the abbey, including: 1900 square yards of carpet, 11,000 square yards of cheap floor covering for the stands, 18,000 yards of gold braid, 2,500 yards of blue velvet, 1,000 yards of blue and gold brocade, 6,000 yards of fabrics for temporary ceilings, 12,000 yards of printed material for the stands, 24,000 yards of leather cloth.

Cloth of gold costing seventy dollars a yard was used for the canopy held over the king and queen during one portion of the crowning.

The Earl of Lincoln provided one glove, for the king's right hand, by virtue of his holding of the Manor of Worksp.

Sir Claud Schuster, Clerk of the Crown, received five yards of scarlet cloth as his fee for recording the coronation proceedings within the abbey.

FAVORITE RECIPES

Crisp Peanut Butter Waffles

Two cups of pastry flour, three and one-half teaspoons baking powder, one-half teaspoon salt, three eggs, one and one-fourth cups milk, two tablespoons peanut butter, two tablespoons butter. Sift the flour with the baking powder and salt. Beat the egg yolks well and add them to the milk with the melted butter and melted peanut butter. Then stir in sifted flour mixture. Lastly fold in the stiffly beaten egg whites.

This batter can be made 24 hours in advance, and placed in the refrigerator to chill. It makes the waffles even more delicate and crisp and is a real advantage when guests are expected for a late supper, or special snack. Sprinkle with confectioners sugar and serve piping hot, or serve with marmalade, sauce or syrup.

Spiced Oatmeal Cup Cakes

One and one-half cups flour, one-half cup cooked oatmeal, one-fourth cup granulated sugar, one-fourth cup raisins, one-fourth cup molasses, one-fourth teaspoon soda, one-half teaspoon baking powder, one-half teaspoon cinnamon, three tablespoons shortening.

Heat molasses and shortening to boiling point. Mix with all the ingredients. Bake in muffin tins for about 25 minutes. These are easily made and have a deliciously different flavor.

Peanut Butter Muffins

One tablespoon butter, two tablespoons peanut butter, one egg, one-half teaspoon salt, one-fourth cup granulated sugar, one-half cup milk, one cup flour, two teaspoons baking powder.

Cream butter and sugar, work in peanut butter. Beat the egg with the salt, sift the baking powder with the flour, and combine both mixtures with the milk. Beat thoroughly and bake in muffin pans in hot oven. This makes a good luncheon dish, and they may be toasted for breakfast the following day—if any remain.

Note: Peanut butter adds nourishment as well as a distinctive flavor to any dish. It is always popular with the children.

Spaghetti and Shrimp

This is a novel dish for luncheon or the Sunday night supper.

One package spaghetti. Break in large sections, or use whole, if desired. Boil nine minutes in salted, rapidly boiling water. Drain.

Cook together one quart of tomato juice, one bay leaf, one teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, two tablespoons tomato catsup, one minced chili pepper, four drops of tabasco sauce. After simmering for about 30 minutes, add one small can sliced mushrooms, and two pounds of cooked shrimps.

This entire mixture may be combined with the cooked spaghetti and quickly heated through, or place alternate layers of spaghetti and shrimp in a buttered baking dish, cover with hot sauce, and heat through in hot oven, serving in baking dish, garnished with parsley.

NOTHING LIKE FRESH CRESS IN THE CITY: AUTHOR TELLS HOW

Home executives will read the books by Ford Maddox Ford with increasing interest if they happened to see a recent interview in which the famous novelist and poet declared that "the cook is really an artist."

Mr. Ford deprecates the modern notion that household work is degrading for men and boasts proudly that he is rather a good cook himself. Says Mr. Ford:

"The cook is an artist, quite as much as the painter or composer. For he plays with a succession of tastes on your palate as a musician plays with themes that touch the emotions."

The novelist, who has just published his 55th volume, considers that herbs, fruits and vegetables are the most important items on the kitchen table. His main precaution, when he rolls up his sleeves for a bout in the kitchen, is not to have foods of contrasting flavor steaming away at the same time. Such a blending of aromas upsets the foods more than the author.

Here is a special tip from this author, who has been writing for more than 40 years. Grow cress in the window of your city home! Mr. Ford does. He has a regular sugarbowl garden, and carefully shears the foliage for sandwiches and needed flavoring.

Mr. Ford thinks that city folks are missing a lot if they don't grow cress in their windows. Here is his secret: Just scatter a few seeds on a piece of flannel. Set this in a dish and pour on a little water. In a few days you will have a crop of cress. Then get your sandwich bread ready!

A "want-ad" costs but 93c for three days. You'll be surprised at what wonders are wrought by them.

FASHION PARADE

By Orry-Kelly

(Famous Hollywood Stylist Writing For International News Service)

HOLLYWOOD — (INS) — The most embarrassing moments in a girl's life are usually those when she knew she wasn't dressed just right. Sports clothes that are not the epitome of simplicity are apt to be embarrassing.

The reigning favorite for active sport is the shorts and blouse costume. Cotton, wash silk and linen are the topping materials. We are making the pleated shorts, ideal for croquet, bicycling or any slow-action game, only an inch or two above knee length. Tailored blouses with elbow sleeves are perfect for these full shorts. Although many of the professional tennis players find this type of shorts gives them the most freedom, Hollywood girls seem to prefer the shorter fitted type for active sports.

For the fitted shorts, some of our ardent tennis-players, like Patricia Ellis, like a "bra" or halter top.

A crownless turban is Margaret Lindsey's headgear choice for active life. Rosalind Margins likes a visor or a visored cap and Olivia de Havilland wears a cotton handanna tied under her chin a la immigrant girl.

There never has been such a fine array of shoes for the informal moments. The white tennis oxford that stood alone for so many years as the standard for sports now has plenty of company. In "Varsity Show," Rosemary Lane (Lola Lane's sister and a newcomer to the screen) wears white pique shorts with powder blue and white striped linen "bra" and matching striped skull cap. To carry out the striped theme further we had toeless sandals made of this same linen. Some of the girls are wearing crocheted wool booties with soft, flexible soles while others like ankle-high antelope moccasins. There's a wide choice here with plaids, checks and dots as good as monotonous.

The wool socklets hold their own again this year except that there are provisions for the toeless sandal. . . . Some of the socks are toeless, too.

Active sports things close with slide fasteners wherever possible because buttons so often pop off at important moments in a game. Colors can run riot but materials must be sturdy and comfort vies with chic.

FALLSINGTON

Benjamin Woolston and Mrs. Sara Woolston were recent visitors at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Horace Woolston, Collingswood, N. J.

An all-day meeting under the direction of the WPA was held in the Fallsington school building. Many sections of Bucks County were represented. Business was presided over by Mr. Nickerson, one of the leaders of the local WPA, after which a social gathering was held in the Community House. Dinner was also served in the Community House.

Miss Mae Kelly was a Sunday dinner guest at the home of her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. William Kelly, Morrisville.

Mrs. Helen Satterthwaite, Newtown, was a Thursday visitor at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Winder.

Thirty persons attended the covered dish luncheon given by the Ladies Auxiliary of the Falls Township Company in the fire house.

Reform Seekers Determined That City Shall No Longer Be World Mecca For Pleasure Seekers

By International News Service

SAN FRANCISCO, May 13—(INS)—After 75 years of the most colorful night life in America, it appears today that San Francisco is at last to be delivered of the brilliance—and the shadows—of its traditional underworld.

The stinging vice and graft report recently made public by former G-man Edwin N. Atherton has resulted in the most aggressive drive in the city's history to rid itself of unregulated prostitution and gambling.

For three-quarters of a century it has been a notable fact that you could always get "whatever you wanted" in San Francisco.

That knowledge of the accessibility of all things made of the city an everyday rendezvous for pleasure seekers, dilettantes, ruffians and thugs.

They streamed here from Port Said and Capetown, from Boston and Zamboanga. San Francisco was the place where gold clinked more melodiously, champagne ran more freely, and women ministered more wisely.

The shady underside of the teeming, frontier port was, like Cleopatra, all things to all men. It was a hole of iniquity to the high-minded, and a resort of delight to the adventuresome.

Out of this early disposition of the city to give to the wayward of the earth and hard-living pioneers of the land all the tangible properties of an "American Paris," the Barbary Coast was born.

It mushroomed out of the dirt streets housing dancehalls, cribs, saloons and parlor houses. It rose from the dives of old Sidney Town, the habitat of a gang of hardened Australian ex-convicts who pillaged the city during the fifties.

Historians of the quarter say it had its bellicose beginnings in 1862 and its soft-breathing end in 1914.

In that interim it became known the world over for its purple purlieus, its knockout drops and its fast, accomplished women. It became a meeting-ground where criminals and cut-throats of all nationalities held high carnival.

Melodious sounds and the smell of garlic mingled with the odors of cheap perfume and fresh beer in the elaborate saloons of the wide open '70s and '80s, where percentage girls plied their job among pickpockets, seamen and dandies. Meanwhile bouncers in the gambling halls collected gold nuggets.

In quick succession, the Moulin Rouge, the Hippodrome, the Old Tivoli, the Thalia and Spider Kelly's rose to fame as emporiums of pleasure on the hub of the old coast.

Patrons danced the Pony Dance, the Bunny Hug and the Texas Tommy, and entertaining "waiter girls" staged suggestive shows till dawn.

A galaxy of bawdy figures, men with an eye to business and often with a heart for philanthropy, rose to fame as purveyors of other men's wants. The names of their resorts were whispered over glasses in the earth's far corners.

Men were garroted in Murderer's Corner and robbed in traps of Deadman's Alley. Policemen walked in twos. Chalf-faced women along Dupont street halted passersby from behind their curtained windows.

That, in a word, was the not altogether drab background against which the big cleanup of the quarter was staged by church-people and civic leaders in a wave of righteousness following 1910.

But even that offensive, as concerted and declaratory as the present cleanup, and though it saw the closing of countless dens and houses of ill fame, did not kill the old Coast stone dead.

For at that point, according to aides in the Atherton investigation, the centers of vice shifted, spreading their tentacles through all districts of the city, and the veiled, less blatant underworld of the French Syndicate opened operations.

It is, largely, the remaining units of that sinister world against which the present vice campaign is directed.

One Fernand Ondella, a Corsican Apache from the gay quarters of Paris, and today under federal indictment for perjury, is credited with organization of the French Syndicate.

It is said by the investigators that he, travelling in San Francisco before the demise of the old Barbary Coast, saw a happy hunting grounds there, and prevailed upon countless of his old men and women associates of the Parisian underworld to come over to San Francisco in a wholesale migration.

Thus began an influx of thousands, through the eastern United States and French-Canadian cities, who over the period of years since 1915 have become the managerial hand in San Francisco's vice world, according to official sources.

The Atherton report specifically stated that during the sixteen months' investigation it was discovered that Americans engaged in the local prostitution business "expressed resentment at the foreign invasion, and asserted that the French were given more liberties and favors by the police."

It also named Ondella as "an organizer and one of the most dominant figures in the French Syndicate," and said he "was subservient to McDonough Brothers, bond brokers, and was used by them to take care of situations which arose in the French vice colony."

Ondella is now facing trial before the United States Immigration Service, charged with perjury for allegedly giving false testimony at his immigration hearing. If the charges are proven, he will be deported from the United States.

But, even so, he has already bequeathed to San Francisco a highly organized, well entrenched syndicate of vice, successor to the old Barbary Coast, which the city's law enforcement body is now engaged in trying to destroy.

If the destruction is complete, and the sweep of the back streets is clean, San Francisco will be without an organized vice quarter for the first time in seventy-five years.

WHAT SHALL BABY HAVE FOR DESSERT?

Thinking up a different dessert for baby and for the two to five age youngster is one of the major problems of the busy Mother.

It is an added advantage to move outside the custard and junket routine and choose a pudding that the entire family can enjoy.

Bavarian Cream which may be varied with different fruit juices, with plain, slightly-sweetened cream, or with whipped cream, is a tempting choice. Custards are the basis of this dessert, of course. This is recommended for children from two to five.

Bavarian Cream
Make a soft custard using only the egg yolks, and just before you take it off the fire add one-half package of well-soaked gelatine. Stir until completely dissolved.

Pour the custard into a bowl, add the well-beaten whites of the eggs remaining from the custard and a little whipped cream. Pour into individual serving dishes, or into one mould to cool. If a large mould is preferred, use a china mould and wet it before you put the cream in.

This dessert should be made early in the morning, since it requires four or five hours to set properly in the refrigerator. Serve with a fresh fruit sauce, like sweetened strawberries or pineapple, or with any stewed fruit, adding a tiny dash of whipped cream. A few teaspoons of chilled orange juice, or chilled strained apple sauce are other variations, which will disguise this pudding, if it is served two days in succession.

CULINARY JOTTINGS

Modern products, coupled with an intelligent modern attitude have put to rout the old bugaboo that pie was indigestible. Correct mixing and baking methods are half the secret and the balance is governed by the use of a pure vegetable shortening. The modern cook knows that if pastry is made right—and from the right ingredients, it is perfectly digestible.

It remained for the butcher to suggest a new use for that sturdy old standby, meat loaf. When he was grinding veal and beef one day, he announced that one or two left-over slices of meat loaf might be crumbled into a batter with beaten eggs, minced green pepper or chives, seasonings and the necessary milk or water for a delicious omelet. That might solve a problem when a guest drops in during the last lap of the meat loaf. Sliced thinly, it is delicious for the children's lunch box. The butcher also volunteered the news that his wife has a large appetite for head cheese, which has been dipped in vinegar.

A mixture of fresh fruit, cut together, and served with powdered sugar, is a good solution for the dessert problem at least once a week.

At this time of year, pineapple and strawberries are particularly appetizing and colorful to look at.

Pineapple alone is always welcome, and it should be shredded with a sharp knife, rather than chopped. Cut up a dozen marshmallows with sharp scissors and add to the pineapple to cut that slight tang. The children will like this treat.

Diced fresh pineapple also is a treat with a plain vanilla custard or cornstarch pudding.

FASHION PARADE

HOLLYWOOD—(INS)—Hose are the great feminine "also ran." No pun intended, but it's true women don't pay enough attention to them. With the greatest of care they'll match up all of their accessories, as a rule, to contrast or blend with the costume and then put on the first pair of hose they happen to lay their hands on.

As skirts grow shorter attractive legs grow in importance. We advise the girls in pictures not to buy off-shades merely because they are modish. Generally its a wise rule to have stockings blend in color either with the skirt or shoes. If a girl's legs are not perfect this is a hard and fast rule.

When legs are too thin we advise girls to wear hose of a little heavier weight than they would ordinarily choose. This keeps the bones from showing up to obviously and also strangely enough, seems to increase the size of the legs a bit. Girls with big legs, on the other hand, should choose the sheerest of hose because this has a slight slimming tendency. Pointed heels in the hose also have a slimming effect, and where ankles are exceptionally large it is wise to have very long inverted heels in the stockings that exactly match the shoes. High-heeled shoes also make a leg look more slender.

We recommend the knee-length elastic topped hose for formal evening wear if a girl does not need a girdle as garters will show up under a moulded gown. Stockings with filmy lace toes are becoming with toeless evening sandals. However these are so fragile they may not stand up an entire evening, so it is a good idea to carry an extra pair in the evening bag as Joan Blondell does.

Beware of the knee-length hose for daytime wear because it's ruinous to have bare knees showing when they aren't supposed to.

Clocks are in evidence again but they match rather than contrast with the stockings now. Rosalind Marquis wears grey hose clocked with grey in "That Certain Woman" and it strikes us as much more attractive than the old-time contrast.

Most of the wool bobble socks for sports wear have enough elastic woven into their tops to hold them in place. However the ever original Jane Bryan ties hers at the ankle with a little draw string. A boon to girls who like to wear sandals for sports is the new toeless bobble sock which allows a girl to show her lacquered nails.

Hose should never be taken too casually because it is just as bad to have them off color as it is to wear a hat that has no relation to the rest of the costume. And if stockings are chosen carefully they can do a lot to flatter a girl's legs.

HIGH SCHOOL RALLY FALLS SHORT; LOSE, 4-2

By Louis Tomlinson

NEWTOWN, May 13—The Cardinals of Bristol High put on a last ditch rally to score two runs in the seventh inning to overcome a four-run advantage and so went down to their second defeat of the season here yesterday, 4-2.

Jack Janney and Bud Tunis hooked up in a pitchers' duel with Janney shading the latter to turn in his team's third triumph of the season in league competition. Janney held the mighty bats of the visitors to a solitary blow—a handy single over the infield by Joe LaPolla in the second—until the seventh when he weakened a little to allow two runs to count. His eight passes kept him in trouble continually, but he managed to squeeze through without any damage until the last frame. Four Bristol batters fell victims of his hook via the strike-out.

Bud Tunis started for Bristol in a surprise move by Coach Dougherty. But the little right hander pitched good ball, allowing only 3 hits in five innings, while fanning 5 and giving up 4 walks. He was removed in the sixth in favor of a pinch-hitter, Carl Leinheiser finished up and was touched for the fourth hit by Newtown. He also walked one batter, hit one, and allowed the final run.

Two unearned runs in the opening chapter proved to be the deciding runs of the tilt for the ultimate winners.

With two out Janney singled and Scott followed with a double to left. Wiggins popped a foul but in running among the spectators Charlie Locke failed to squeeze the pill. Wiggins received another chance and this time walloped a single to left, admitting Janney and Scott.

The score stood at 2-0 until the fifth when Norm Hennessey completed the circuit to dent the plate when he walked, took second on Preston Hill's sacrifice, moved to third on a passed ball and scored on a squeeze play with Janney dumping a neat bunt along the first base line. In the sixth Rutherford was struck by a Leinheiser pitch, moved to second on Wiggins' sacrifice and counted on Bud Tomlinson's single to left.

Bristol waited until the seventh to put on a rally which netted two runs, but it was too late then. They resulted from a pass to DeLuca, Hughes' deep drive to center for a triple and an infield out. Harry Baurath started the rally again but nothing came of it as both LaPolla and Spencer failed to advance him.

Norm Hennessey and Charlie Hughes sparkled on the defense for their respective teams. The former turned in the fielding gem of the game when he snared Hughes' hot liner in the first.

When Hardy Johnson went hitless it was the first time this year that he failed to make a hit. This leaves Harry Baurath as the only Cardinal who has hit safely at least once in every game so far.

DOUGHERTY'S HOME RUN UPSETS BOLDEN'S STARS

"Glee" Dougherty, hot corner guardian of the Landreth Seeds baseball nine, upset the plans of the Bolden Stars here last night when he clouted a home run with the bases loaded to give the localites a 6-3 victory over the travelling stars. Dougherty's clout climaxed a five-run rally of the Landrethmen in the fourth.

Going into the last half of the fifth, the colored team had a 2-1 lead in a pitching duel between Turner Ashby and Tommy Craig but then the works started. Harwi grounded to short for what should have been an easy out but Harvey muffed up the ball and after booting the ball around, Harwi was resting on first. Sullivan sacrificed the runner to second and Broderick skied to center for the second out.

Ashby scored Harwi with a single to left. Rockhill also hit safely and when Liberatore worked Craig for a pass the sacks were loaded for Dougherty. The third-sacker waited for a pitch to his liking and sent it into deep center along the clinder-path. The ball seemed to gain speed and height as it left the batter's hudgeon and there was no doubt that it was a four-master, cleaning the sacks and giving Landreth's triumph.

Coronation of This And of Other Days

Regalia used by the king and queen during the coronation service recently was valued at thirty million dollars. One item alone, the Imperial State Crown, contains more than two thousand jewels and is valued at three and three-quarter million dollars. The regalia contains some of the world's most noted diamonds, rubies and emeralds.

The coronation processional route was six and a quarter miles. Two and a half miles longer than the route taken by George V. in 1911.

George IV felt the heat so badly at his coronation that he took off all his clothes in one of the side chapels and refused to continue with the ceremony until he had cooled off.

A bored George II, set the entire company laughing by winking at pretty peeresses during his coronation.

Sixty thousand troops lined the coronation processional route. There were 20,000 police on duty, assisted by 10,000 special constables.

LANGHORNE VICTIMS OF MORRISVILLE NINE

LANGHORNE, May 13—Coach John Hoffman's Morrisville Bulldogs won their third Lower Bucks County League tilt here Tuesday night, walloping Langhorne High's batters by a 10 to 0 count. Eleven Langhorne errors and seven Bulldog hits gave the visitors an easy triumph.

Johnny Ross, a righthander, was on the mound for the winners and allowed but five hits in shutting out the minions of Charlie Beck. Jim Yeager and Johnny Byer each got two hits, while Bucky Wallace drove in three runs for the winning ensemble.

Morrisville will play Falls Township at Island Park, Morrisville, in a non-loop tussle this evening, starting at six o'clock.

COX IS VICTOR OVER MANICH IN ARENA BOUT

TRENTON, N. J., May 13—Dynamite Joe Cox, Cleveland had man, won the feature wrestling bout at the Arena last night when his opponent, George Manich, of Belmar, was unable to continue after suffering a twisted ligament in his right knee.

Manich won the first fall after 13 minutes when he brought Cox to the canvas with a resounding thud, using a clever armlock to achieve the fall. After the intermission, Cox concentrated his attack on Manich's bandaged right knee. Repeated applications of a punishing leg hold proved the undoing of Manich and the latter finally gave up.

Manich lay prostrate in the centre of the ring and Dr. William V. Carroll, club physician, clambered through the ropes to assist him. George was carried to his dressing room, where, after a further examination of the injured knee, Dr. Carroll declared Manich unfit to continue. Consequently, Cox was awarded the match.

In the semi-windup, Hank Barber and Wee Willie Davis battled to a rousing draw. The bout was terminated after 18 minutes when the principals left the ring with their legs entwined in an Indian death lock. After separating themselves, both wrestlers continued to slug it out on the ring-side floor, and were counted out by the referee.

Carol LaRue won his second match in as many weeks when he pinned Andy Meixner to the mat after 17 minutes. In the opener, Bob Managoff battled to a 30-minute draw with Stan Pinto.

ODD FELLOWS TO OPPOSE HIBERNIANS TONIGHT

BRISTOL TWILIGHT LEAGUE

Schedule for Tonight

ODD FELLOWS VS HIBERNIANS (Leedom's Field)

Team	Won	Lost	Pct.
Grundy's	1	0	1.000
Superior	1	0	1.000
Hibernians	1	0	1.000
Rohm and Haas	1	1	.500
Odd Fellows	0	1	.000
St. Ann's	0	2	.000

After a one-day rest, play will be resumed in the Bristol Twilight League first half chase this evening with one game being scheduled, the Odd Fellows meeting the Hibernians on Leedom's field. Tomorrow night, games will be played at Edgely and Leedom's fields.

The first two evenings tested the strength of the clubs. The mill teams, Superior Zinc Corporation, Grundy's Woolen Mill, and the Rohm and Haas Chemical Company, proved equal to the task and emerged victorious in their battles against organization nines.

The Superior Zinc club proved the surprise of the circuit when it whipped the 1936 champions, the Odd Fellows, in a tilt at Edgely. Of the organization clubs, the Hibs are the only boys who haven't tasted a defeat. St. Ann's have dropped both of their contests played but those who have seen this club in action know that it will be among the top-notchers when the season winds up.

It is entirely too early in the season to make any predictions as to how the clubs will finish but one thing is certain, the six clubs are more evenly divided than any other time in the history of the Twilight League loop. A close race is predicted throughout the entire first and second halves.

President Thomas Juno is working on a trophy to be presented to the champion club of the 1937 season. More will be learned of this later.

Tonight's game will begin at 6:30 p.m. sharp.

De Palma Ranked at Top of 10 Greatest Drivers

Ralph De Palma, winner of the 1915 Indianapolis classic, rates as the greatest automobile driver of all time. Such is the opinion of T. E. (Pop) Myers, general manager of the track and a veteran of the game since 1910, who selected the 10 greatest auto pilots of the past quarter century in United States. Lou Meyer, only three-time winner at Indianapolis, was accorded second, and Tommy Milton, winner there in 1921 and 1923, was ranked third. Others selected, named in the order of their rank, included Jimmy Murphy, Frank Lockhart, Rex Mays, Bill Cummings, Dario Restas, Jules Goux and Harry Hartz. Of these, Meyer, Cummings and Rex Mays are slated to be in there trying for new laurels when the 1937 edition is staged at the famous track, May 31.
